"It was really helpful to have a reflective space with people both with similar experience and also people from many different work environments. I felt both challenged and supported to develop my practice." evaluation form feedback

WORK REFLECTION GROUP

An opportunity to develop your understanding of group processes and enhance your group work

- 20 groups per year, monthly, on 10 Friday evenings 4.45 p.m.—8.15 p.m.
- Explore therapeutic work with clients within a supportive yet challenging group environment.
- Facilitated by an experienced IGA Training Supervisor.
- Possibilities for further training or supervision after the end of the group.
- Based in Bolton, Greater Manchester.
- Starts September 2020

The work reflection group is a form of supervision group in which participants are given the opportunity to reflect on their work using group analytic ideas.

Participants are helped to explore their work with clients and colleagues and the group and organisational context in which it takes place.
